Armed with anti-virus, anti-malware, password manager, and other useful utilities, SBGuard Anti-Ransomware Cracked Accounts is a compact, yet extremely helpful tool that will keep your computer safe from the scourge of ransomware. Do you like the SBGuard Anti-Ransomware? Please share with your friends! #1 and #2 are now considered classic AES (Advanced Encryption Standard) implementations, whose best known variant is AES-256 (but you can find several others). Chiper, which is also a very popular hash algorithm, is another one, but not to be confused with SHA-2, which uses the same name. #3 is very easy to remember as it is based on three letters. There are many others. And remember, the first three letters of every hash algorithm are not to be confused with SHA-1, SHA-2, etc... A: I found this answer helpful. Chiper Rudolph II of Swabia Rudolph II (c. 920 – c. 975) was the King of Germany (as King Rudolf I of Burgundy) from 936 until his death in 975. History His father, Theodoric I, King of Burgundy, died in 926 or 927. In 936, he succeeded his mother Judith as King of Germany, and was elected King of Italy in 953 by Emperor Otto I. He was the first German king of the Liudolfing dynasty. He had his own for the March of Lotharingia. Although he was a member of the Rhenish Franconian tribe of the Liudolfing dynasty, he was not of Liudolfing stock. He was married to Theophanu, the daughter of Byzantine Emperor Constantine VIII. They were first cousins because their mothers were sisters. Children His children were: Lambert I of Germany Agilbert I, Count of Hesbaye After Theophanu's death in 953, Rudolph remarried to her cousin Judith, an Edith of Saxony. He died at the monastery of Saint-Denis in Paris and was buried there. Legacy He is venerated as Saint Rudolf of Novara. References Sources Category:920s births Category:975 deaths
